

Interview Skills

Interviews make everyone slightly nervous, but if you are well prepared, dress appropriately, you will feel more confident, and the chances of success will be much greater.

Dress appropriately

It's always better to be overdressed than underdressed for an interview. Be smart and pay attention to detail by making sure you iron your shirt, wear smart shoes, wear subtle accessories etc.

Be on time

Being punctual shows your employer that you have the right attitude and behaviour.

Come Prepared

Practice your responses to all the typical questions, such as "tell me about yourself" and "why are you looking for a new position?" How well you speak will have a bigger impact than what you say.

Ask questions

At the end of the interview, you'll most likely be asked whether you have any questions. Having questions prepared shows your interviewer how interested you really are in the role.
